Excerpt: . . . it from the pulpit; the medical faculty rose unanimously in arms against it; and the common people were incited to hoot at Lady Mary as an unnatural mother when she appeared in public. Her energy and courage, however, finally triumphed. The project was submitted to the government, and it was first tried upon criminals sentenced to death. Proving successful, the practice gained ground gradually, and, until superseded by Dr. Jenners discovery, was the sole stay against the spread of the disease. Lady Mary devoted a great deal of her time to this her pet scheme. She had met with such success in her treatment of her own children, that her presence was required on every such occasion by mothers of her own rank; and she cheerfully gave her assistance and advice whenever demanded. She richly deserved a public memorial; but the only recognition of her benevolence and patriotism has been at private hands. In the cathedral at Lichfield a cenotaph is erected to her memory, as an expression of gratitude, by a lady who regarded her as her own preserver. The first few years after Lady Marys return were undoubtedly the most brilliant and prosperous of her long life. She was both admired and courted. Her influence in literary circles was immense. Poets and authors solicited her patronage, which she always gave generously, though her judgment upon the publications of her own day was often influenced by personal feelings. She liberally assisted Savage, and...
